Route

Day 1 Arrival in Aegina

Upon arrival in Athens, make your way to the port of Piraeus and take the ferry to Aegina. Once on the island, your luggage will be collected at the port and transferred directly to your accommodation, allowing you to start your holiday unburdened. From the harbour, it is a short walk to your hotel in Aegina Town, where you can settle in and begin exploring the island at your own pace.

Day 2 From Perdika to Marathonas beach, 9,5 km

Today's walk begins in the picturesque fishing village of Perdika, which can be reached by local bus or taxi. From here, the route climbs inland along old paths lined with chapels, traditional threshing floors and the remains of historic windmills.

Passing through the village of Sfendouri, you continue ascending across a striking limestone landscape that almost resembles a lunar scenery. Along the way, magnificent views open up over the islands of Agistri, Moni and Methana, with the mountains of the Peloponnese visible in the distance. If you wish, you can make a detour to the summit of Mount Ellanio (also known as Profitis Elias), at 532 metres the highest point on Aegina.

The small church at the top makes a perfect spot for a picnic while enjoying the panoramic views. The route then descends through open countryside towards the Eleonas, a plain dotted with ancient olive trees, some of which are more than 500 years old. The walk ends at the beach of Marathonas. Depending on the season, a local bus may be available for the return journey; otherwise, a short taxi ride will take you back to town.

Distance: 9,5 km

Altitude +475 / -495 m

Day 3 From Agios Nektarios to Agia Marina, 9 km

Today's walk is one of the highlights of the trip, taking you across the heart of Aegina from the Monastery of Agios Nektarios to the seaside village of Agia Marina.

Reach the starting point by local bus or taxi and take some time to visit the impressive monastery, dedicated to Saint Nektarios, one of Greece's most beloved modern saints. Thousands of pilgrims visit each year, drawn by his reputation as a miracle worker. A short walk leads to the hilltop settlement of Paleochora, once the island's medieval capital. Today, its narrow paths are dotted with the remains of 38 Byzantine churches, some beautifully preserved and others slowly reclaimed by time.

From here, the route follows a scenic ridge past the ruins of old windmills before reaching a beautiful viewpoint. The trail then descends through abandoned olive groves towards Mesargos and continues along quiet rural roads and dirt tracks through the island's countryside. Soon, one of Aegina's most remarkable landmarks comes into view: the Temple of Aphaia.

Perched high above the sea, this exceptionally well-preserved ancient sanctuary is considered one of the finest examples of Classical Greek architecture. After visiting the temple, a gentle descent along a wide track leads to the coastal village of Agia Marina. From here, you can return to Aegina Town by local bus or taxi.

Distance: 9 km

Altitude: +215 / -370 m

Day 4 Arrivederci, Aegina!

After breakfast, take the ferry back to Piraeus. The crossing offers one last opportunity to enjoy the views of the Saronic Gulf before returning to the mainland. Your arrangements end upon arrival in Piraeus.

Practical info

Closest airport: Athens

To reach Aegina, take a ferry from the port of Piraeus. The journey takes approximately 1 hour and 15 minutes by ferry or 45 minutes by hydrofoil. Hydrofoil tickets can be booked at an additional cost.

We generally recommend travelling by ferry, as the crossing is part of the experience itself. Ferries offer outdoor decks where you can enjoy the sea views, as well as cafés serving drinks and snacks on board. Hydrofoils are faster but offer indoor seating only, and passengers must remain seated throughout the journey. They can also be less comfortable in windy conditions.

For your return journey, you may choose any ferry or hydrofoil service from Aegina back to Piraeus.

From Piraeus, you can reach Athens International Airport directly using the X96 Airport Express Bus, or travel to the centre of Athens via Metro Line 1.
