The Wicklow Way - Ireland

9 days, PRICE FROM € 1182

The Wicklow Way is a captivating journey through Ireland's most scenic and tranquil landscapes, often referred to as "The Garden of Ireland". Starting just outside Dublin, this trail winds through the breathtaking Dublin and Wicklow mountains, offering a perfect mix of rugged beauty and serene countryside. From Rathfarnham to the charming village of Clonegal, the trail meanders through a variety of terrain—forest paths, open mountain tracks, and ancient Irish roads known as boreens. With highlights like the stunning Powerscourt Waterfall, the serene Lough Tay, and the ancient monastic site of Glendalough, every step offers a new discovery. This walk is a perfect blend of nature, history, and traditional Irish charm.

Whether you're hiking through quiet forests, passing shimmering lakes, or traversing mountain paths with sweeping vistas of the Wicklow Mountains, this trail is an unforgettable experience for any outdoor enthusiast. With its blend of natural beauty, historical landmarks, and vibrant local culture, the Wicklow Way is the perfect escape into Ireland's heartland.

You can specify how many days you'll be walking when making your reservation. You can add airport transfers, an overnight stay in Dublin, or a rest day along the way; simply let us know and we will gladly quote you a price and make the necessary arrangements.

Route

Day 1 Dublin to Coolakay, 23,3 km

Marlay Park is situated on the south side of Dublin in Rathfarnham, approximately 4km from the city centre. From Marlay Park, you will follow the Wicklow Way trail through the park and out the back. The Wicklow Way travels along the base of Kilmashogue Forest towards Two Rock Mountain, named after the granite tors that sit atop it. Keep following the trail down the side of Tibbradden and onto the road towards Glencullen. The stage concludes at Coolakay, a picturesque farm known for its scenic views and welcoming atmosphere, offering a perfect spot to rest and take in the beauty of the surrounding Wicklow countryside.

Distance: 23,3 km

Elevation Gain: +404 m

Day 2 Coolakay to Old Bridge, 16,9 km

Continue on the Wicklow Way trail towards Crone Wood. Follow the well-marked path through the forest, which eventually opens up along the edge of a cliff, offering breathtaking views of Powerscourt Waterfall, part of the Dargle River. The trail then leads through a deforested area managed by Coillte, the Irish Forestry Board. For those seeking an additional challenge, there is the option to climb Djouce and rejoin the Wicklow Way after descending. As the trail leads south, a boardwalk guides you over boggy terrain, offering views of Luggala and the stunning Lough Tay in the distance. This is a perfect spot to pause for lunch and enjoy the dramatic landscape. As you descend from White Hill, you will pass a commemorative plaque honoring J.B. Malone, the founder of the Wicklow Way. Continue along the trail until you reach the R759 road, where you can enjoy views of the Guinness Estate and Lough Tay. From here, a transfer take you to your accommodation.

Distance: 16,9 km

Elevation Gain: +502 m

Day 3 Old Bridge to Laragh (Glendalough), 7,2 km

Glendalough, one of the most visited areas in County Wicklow, is renowned for its stunning glacial U-shaped valley and rich historical significance. The monastic site of St. Kevin, founded in the 6th century, features a remarkable 100ft round tower and is a must-see while visiting. Exploring this area can easily fill an extra day, with numerous scenic walks, including a visit to the beautiful Poolanass Waterfall near the Upper Lake.

Distance: 7,2 km

Elevation Gain: +240 m

Day 4 Laragh (Glendalough) to Glenmalure, 15,6 km

Today you pass through the monastic site and cross the Avonbeg River before climbing alongside Mullacore and Lugduff, offering breathtaking views of the Glenmalure Valley and Lugnaquilla, Wicklow's highest peak. The trail descends in a zig-zag pattern through forested paths, eventually leading to the Drumgoff Crossroads.

Distance: 15,6 km

Elevation Gain: +432 m

Day 5 Glenmalure to Iron Bridge (Aughrim), 11,9 km

From Glenmalure, the Wicklow Way follows the historic Military Road, crossing the Avonbeg River and passing the ruins of the Drumgoff Barracks, a reminder of the British military presence in the early 1800s. The trail leaves the road and takes you along a peaceful, forested path on the side of Slieve Maan (Middle Mountain). You'll soon reach the halfway point marked by a sign as you enter the dense woodland. The path runs parallel to the Military Road before crossing the Aghavannagh River, continuing along Carrickashane Mountain, and eventually reaching Iron Bridge, which crosses the River Ow.

Distance: 11,9 km

Elevation Gain: +398 m

Day 6 Iron Bridge (Aughrim) to Tinahealy, 21,9 km

Follow quiet roads and charming boreens, offering pleasant walks especially in summer when the paths are lined with vibrant wildflowers. Despite the peaceful setting, it's important to stay alert and walk on the right side, facing oncoming traffic. Heading south from Moyne, a scenic lane leads to Sandyford Bridge, where you can stop by the nearby St. Colmcille's Holy Well for a quick visit. You'll then arrive to Tinahely, nestled in the Derry River Valley. Tinahely offers opportunities for exploring, like a walk along the old railway line or a visit to Tomnafinnoge Wood, one of Ireland's largest oak forests.

Distance: 21,9 km

Elevation Gain: +303 m

Day 7 Tinahealy to Shillelagh, 17,2 km

Today you start walking along the road that leads you over a small bridge and towards Stranakelly Crossroads. Here, a stop at the famous "Dying Cow" Pub is highly recommended for a refreshing break. With a cozy atmosphere and a relaxing beer garden, it's a perfect spot for a bite to eat. Keep following the Wicklow Way uphill, passing along the northern side of Cronelea Hill. From here, follow the minor road into Shillelagh, a charming village with granite-built houses. Shillelagh sits on the Derry River and is known for being the birthplace of the traditional Irish weapon, the Shillelagh, crafted from blackthorn sticks.

Distance: 17,2 km

Elevation Gain: +171 m

Day 8 Shillelagh to Clonegal, 20,9 km

Continue through the scenic countryside as you head towards Ballard Crossroads and enter the woods at Raheenakit. The trail meanders through Barnamuinga and Aghowie Upper, offering stunning views over counties Carlow and Wexford. From Wicklow Bridge, the final stretch leads 3km south to Clonegal, where the Wicklow Way concludes, marked by an information board and stone bench. A well-deserved stop at Osbourne's Pub, famous for its historic coffin-lid counter, is the perfect way to celebrate completing the trail. Don't miss picking up your Wicklow Way Certificate here. Adjacent to the charming village is Clonegal Castle, a 17th-century granite structure steeped in history and local legend.

Distance: 20,9 km

Elevation Gain: +317 m
