The Finisterre Way from Santiago - Spain

6 days, PRICE FROM € 455

For many walkers, the Camino ends in Santiago de Compostela. For others, that arrival sparks a quiet desire to continue. The Camino Finisterre leads you beyond the symbolic destination of the pilgrimage, along paths that grow progressively quieter and closer to the ocean, toward the ancient finis terrae.

Leaving Santiago behind, you walk through the green hills, forests and rural villages of Galicia, gradually approaching the Atlantic coast. The atmosphere changes day by day: the crowds thin out, the landscapes open up, and the rhythm becomes slower and more reflective. This is a journey of transition and closure at once — less travelled, more intimate, and marked by a deep sense of space.

Continuing on the Camino Finisterre to the dramatic coastline of Finisterre — and, if you wish, to Muxía — offers a different kind of ending. One shaped by wind, light and wide horizons, where the Camino meets the sea and the final steps feel both grounding and expansive.

Route

Day 1 Arrival in Santiago de Campostela

You arrive in Santiago, a city alive with stories of arrival. Pilgrims from all over Europe gather in the old town, and the Cathedral stands as a powerful symbol of completion. Take time to explore the historic centre, wander through the squares and arcades, and enjoy a relaxed evening. Tomorrow, you will set out again — this time toward the ocean.

Day 2 Walk from Santiago to Negreira, 21 km

You leave Santiago through green parks and quiet neighbourhoods, gradually moving away from the city. Before long, forest paths and rural tracks take over, and the sound of footsteps replaces urban noise.
The route winds through shaded trails, small villages and gentle countryside, offering a smooth transition into a slower pace.
Negreira welcomes you with a calm, local atmosphere — a peaceful end to your first day on the road to the sea.

Distance: 21 km

Day 3 Walk from Negreira to Olveiroa, 33 km

A longer day, best approached with a steady and patient rhythm. You walk through increasingly open and silent landscapes, alternating forests, rolling hills and scattered rural settlements where a fountain or café becomes a welcome pause.
As the day unfolds, the sense of distance from everyday life grows stronger. Olveiroa appears as a simple refuge surrounded by nature — modest, quiet, and deeply rewarding after a full day of walking.

Distance: 33 km

Day 4 Walk from Olveiroa to Cee, 21 km

Leaving the inland countryside behind, you begin to feel a change in the air. The light shifts, the landscape opens, and the first glimpses of the ocean appear along the way.
The path descends gradually toward the coast, passing villages and panoramic viewpoints before reaching Cee. Here, the Atlantic sets the tone for the days ahead, and the Camino takes on a distinctly coastal character.

Distance: 21 km

Day 5 Walk from Cee to Finisterre, 14 km

A shorter stage, rich in meaning. You follow coastal paths and scenic roads, with the ocean increasingly present beside you. Each step feels like part of a natural conclusion.
Finisterre finally comes into view — once believed to be the edge of the known world. The lighthouse, the wind and the open sea create a powerful sense of arrival, where the Camino meets the horizon.

Distance: 14 km

Day 6 Adiós, Finisterre!

You wake to the sound of the ocean. Take time to explore the village, walk to the lighthouse, or simply sit and watch the sea. It's a day for rest and reflection — a gentle closing chapter where the journey settles into memory.

Day 7 Optional Extra Day

If you wish to extend your journey, you can continue walking along the coast to Muxía, following one of the wildest and most evocative stretches of the route.

Option 1 — Finisterre to Muxía (≈ 31 km)
A long but powerful day, following coastal paths and rural tracks through open, wind-swept landscapes. The ocean accompanies you for much of the walk, reinforcing the feeling of travelling at the edge of the land. Arriving in Muxía, with its sanctuary overlooking the Atlantic, offers a deeply symbolic and moving conclusion.

Option 2 — Finisterre to Lires (≈ 15 km) and Lires to Muxía (≈ 16 km)
For a gentler pace, you can split the walk into two days. The first leads to Lires, a small village surrounded by nature and quiet countryside. The following day continues through rolling paths, forests and coastal views to Muxía, reaching the Sanctuary of Nosa Señora da Barca, where land and sea seem to merge.

Distance: 31 km
